CUBA COMING BACK TO NORMAL STATE UNDER NEW REGIME

Strong Measures Taken to Curb Lawlessness With Manifestations Banned by Military Edict—Old Political Parties Disregarded in Forming New Cabinet—Machado in Bahamas

HAVANA, Aug. 14 (AP).—Strong measures to curb lawlessness were taken today by the Cuban Government as a new Cabinet was sworn in, and Dr. Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, provisional president, pleaded for a return of normal conditions.

The United States Navy destroyer Claxton, one of the two naval craft ordered to Havana by President Roosevelt Sunday for the protection of American life and property, sailed tonight for the naval base at Guantanamo. The destroyer Taylor remained in the harbor.

INAUGURATE CONVENTION

Group Leaders Give Addresses to Pacific Relations Delegates

BANFF, Aug. 14 (CP).—Nations of the Pacific gathered tonight at the inaugural dinner of the Institute of Pacific Relations to hear addresses from leaders of the various groups attending the Institute's fifth biennial convention.

CANADA'S WELCOME

Sir Robert Falconer, president of the conference, addressed the huge dinner gathering, announcing he had received from Sir George Perley, acting Prime Minister of Canada, in the absence of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in London, the Dominion's welcome and greetings and best wishes for the success of the Institute's deliberations.

URGES MUTUAL RESPECT

De Cespedes, in his inaugural address, delivered to the acclaim of thousands gathered in the rear of the Presidential Palace, urged respect and tolerance "yield to mutual respect and the most fraternal sentiments." He said he counted on the "efficacious collaboration of all the public powers and national institutions."

NO LONGER A FACTOR

NASSAU, Bahamas, Aug. 14 (AP).—Declaring he is "no longer a factor in Cuba's destiny," former President Gerardo Machado, who fled into exile when his army revolted, settled down here today, "happy and contented." He said he probably would remain indefinitely at Nassau, a British possession.

There was evidence Machado's spectacular flight from Havana with his friends was made with the assistance and aid of high-ranking officials of the new regime.

YELLOW RIVER SPREADS DEATH

Thousands Are Believed Drowned as Floods in China Still Continue

SHANGHAI, Aug. 14 (AP).—Several thousand persons were believed drowned by the rampant Yellow River, as its flooding waters continued spreading today over wide areas along its 2,600-mile course.

Breaks in dikes in Western Shantung resulted in new floods engulfing over villages and farms. Fears that the great stream, one of the largest rivers in the world, would renew its old bed through Kiangsu were expressed in dispatches from Kiangsu Province.

The floods in Honan were reported spreading southward and the water had reached Langfeng, east of Kaifeng. Dispatches from Hankow said flood conditions near the city of Szechui were becoming worse. Area fifty miles wide, extending from Kungshien to Szechui and Chengchow, was reported completely submerged.

Chengchow authorities expressed the belief several thousand persons already have been drowned. Property losses were said to be enormous.

MAY NEGOTIATE LONG-TERM PACT

Conference Between New Zealand and Canadian Representatives Expected to Increase Trade

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Prime Minister G. W. Forbes, of New Zealand, who traveled 13,000 miles to attend the London Conference, left Roosevelt Hotel here today to confer in Washington with President Roosevelt, following conference here with Hon. H. H. Stevens, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, which forecasted increase of trade between the two British Dominions.

Forbes, en route home, stated there was a movement to replace an existing trade pact with Canada, expiring next November, with a long-term agreement. He added that trade between New Zealand and Canada since January has shown an upturn in wool, apples, hides and skins, tallow and castings.

Youth Rescues Girl From Drowning in Waters of Beaver Lake

NEVILLE Barker, aged eighteen years, of 999 Beach Drive, proved himself a hero on Saturday when he saved thirteen-year-old Beatrice Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, from drowning in Beaver Lake.

While attempting to swim across the lake, Beatrice became suddenly exhausted and commenced to sink. Neville, who was swimming near shore, saw her and swam out to her assistance. He caught her just as she was sinking and brought her to shore.

The girl was unconscious. Barker and another youth applied artificial respiration until they brought her round. She was able to proceed to her home and seemed none the worse of her terrifying experience.

Says Japan Is Proud To Stay as Member Of the World Family

Dr. Nitobe Also Makes Friendly Reference to China in Addressing Members of Institute of Pacific Relations at Banff

BANFF, Aug. 14 (CP).—Classing himself neither as a pessimist nor an alarmist, Dr. Inazo Nitobe, formerly Under-Secretary-General of the League of Nations and present member of the House of Peers, Japan, told the members of the Institute of Pacific Relations gathered at the inaugural dinner, tonight, he could not fail to perceive, on scanning the horizon honestly, some causes for misgiving and some signs of danger looming before the world.

One was the return of intolerance in the realm of thought as well as in that of action. Drastic economic changes that were taking place all over the world at present were forcing people to think more in terms of economic security and less in those of personal liberty. To combat the forces of intolerance and vindicate the human heritage of tolerance was worthy of the noblest endeavors of mankind, and to his mind it was the task of the institute to demonstrate this during its deliberations.

ECONOMIC SELF-SUFFICIENCY
The unmistakable trend among the great nations toward economic self-sufficiency was another dominant feature of the present-day world, Dr. Nitobe said. At the very time that modern science had shortened distances and enhanced possibilities of intercourse between nations, increasing obstacles to the free movement of goods and capital, as well as people, were to be seen.

The question, said Dr. Nitobe, "arises in your minds, 'What about Japan?'"

Special Meeting Of Grain Market Members Called

WINNIPEG, Aug. 15 (CP).—Members of Winnipeg Grain Exchange will meet in emergency session this morning to discuss plans to counteract the effect of market conditions at Chicago on the local exchange.

ONE DEAD IN TRAIN WRECK

Four Seriously Injured and Four Missing After Derailment of Freight Cars

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Aug. 14 (AP).—One man was killed and four seriously injured, this morning, when twenty-one freight cars on the Union Pacific Portland-to-Seattle main line piled up near Attalla.

One additional man is believed dead in the wreckage and possibly four are missing. The cries of one victim, pinned under the demolished cars, were heard for several hours, but later ceased, leading to the belief that another injured man had died.

THREE WOMEN MISSING

The injured victims are transients and none of the trainmen were hurt. Three women, said to have boarded the train in Spokane, were unaccounted for tonight.

The accident was caused when a journal on the back truck of a heavy steel car burned out, throwing the truck under the car following.

Three of the cars that piled up were empty, carrying a number of transients.

TRAFFIC TIED UP
The cars piled up in a space of fifty yards, and it is estimated that traffic will be tied up on the main line for two days until the wreckage can be removed and the track repaired.

A truck driver stated that he helped pull one man out from under an overturned car, and that he heard a man screaming under another car. While he was seeking a way to reach the imprisoned man, the car sank in the soft sand and the screams ceased.

ELEVEN HELD FOR TWO MAJOR CRIMES

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 14 (AP).—Eleven persons, headed by the notorious Harvey J. Bailey, were held tonight in the United States Government's investigation of two major crimes of the year, the machine gun slaying of five men at Kansas City Union Station and the $300,000 kidnaping of Charles P. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man.

FOREST FIRES BRING TERROR

Newfoundland Outbreak Changes Course, Forcing Fishermen From Homes

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Aug. 14 (CP).—Hundreds of Newfoundlanders, weary after a week of fighting fires, faced another night of terror as flames continued their work of destruction in dry timber and bush-lands.

Sweeping from Burlington after destroying fourteen buildings on the outskirts, the red menace had turned toward Middle Arm, where, as in other villages along the shores of Green Bay, and fishermen and their families were prepared to abandon their homes and escape by boat should the danger increase.

Late tonight the postal telegraph brought word of another fire at Deer Lake, on the Humber River. Burning since last Monday, this blaze had flared beyond control and large tracts of timber were threatened.

Big Frank Will Be Put in Order

NANAIMO, Aug. 14.—Taking its first rest in twenty-one years, "Big Frank" is being repaired, cleaned and put back into running order. "Big Frank" is the postoffice clock and has struck the time regularly for Nanaimo citizens since December 31, 1912, when it became a fixture of the postoffice through the efforts of Frank Shepherd, who at that time was Nanaimo's representative in Ottawa.

British Columbia Government Asks Royal Commission on Banking Series of Questions at Public Session—Bankers Explain Credit Policies—Personal Appeals Heard

Chairman States Objective In Making Searching Inquiry

BRITISH Columbia cannot hope to finance development out of earnings in its primary industries, but must seek the importation of considerable sums in fresh capital if it is to develop its natural resources on any great scale. That was the most significant point brought out at the Royal Commission on banking and currency, sitting morning and afternoon at the Victoria Courthouse, yesterday, under Baron Macmillan, its chairman. The point was made by Mayne Hamilton, on behalf of the Pacific sub-section of the Canadian Bankers' Association.

Only two submissions went before the panel in the morning, one made by the British Columbia Government, and the others by the bankers' organization. Premier Tolmie, Hon. J. W. Jones, Hon. R. J. Pooley, K.C., and Hon. S. L. Howe appeared for the Government. The commission completed its business in the afternoon, and will open today for a two-day session at Vancouver.

Premier Tolmie in person submitted the British Columbia Government's brief, which asked four leading questions on behalf of commercial interests, and three questions on the representation of the Province. One suggestion was advanced that local banks make some arrangements, either the formation of a single committee with representation from each bank, or committees appointed by each institution, to have the power to authorize private commercial loans up to $50,000 without reference to Eastern bank headquarters.

Shortly put, the Government asked the commission to inquire into the following questions:

1. Is money made available by the banks for legitimate and sound industrial undertakings?

2. Is money being made available in sufficient quantity to insure success?

3. Is there undue delay in obtaining such advances?

4. Are such loans at interest rates that can be successfully repaid?

On its own behalf the Government asked three questions, in addition:

5. Are banking and other financial institutions exacting excessive rates of interest on provincial financing?

6. Could a method be devised Continued on Page 2, Column 2

Loveliest City Says Financier

"They used to say 'See Florence and die,' but I say 'See Victoria and live.' You have the most beautiful city in Canada, if not in the world," declared Rt. Hon. Sir Thomas White, P.C., prominent banker from Toronto and member of the Royal Commission on banking, when interviewed yesterday.

Sir Thomas was unwilling to talk of economic conditions, but admitted that a distinct change was noticeable throughout the length and breadth of Canada.

"Whether it is lasting or not, we cannot tell," he said. "No man could say that with any degree of certainty. But one thing that we do know positively, and that is that hope has returned to the Canadian people. There is a different attitude in the entire country, and that means a great deal."

Sir Thomas declined to say anything as regards the banking situation, expressing the view that the proper person for such information to come from would be the chairman of the commission.

Speaking of general economic conditions in Canada, Lord Macmillan stated that in his opinion, the Dominion was in excellent shape. "It is not possible," he said, "to speak authoritatively on the conditions of a country when you are merely passing through it, but from what I have observed, I must say that Canada is pulling out of the depression with greater ease and alacrity than are a number of other countries."

His Lordship, questioned on the recovery in Great Britain, declared that there was no doubt of it being both permanent and steady. "People are in a better frame of mind," he said, "and the decrease in unemployment is very tangible. We feel that it is not just a seasonal recovery, but rather the beginning of better times."

Gold Ore Mined in U.S. Likely to Be Treated in Canada

Mine Owners Ask Permission to Ship to This Country in Order to Obtain World Market Prices for Metal

OTTAWA, Aug. 14 (CP).—The bulk of the United States' annual production of gold ore and concentrates, approximately $40,000,000, may soon be smelted and refined in Canada. From large and small gold mine owners in scattered parts of the United States republic, permission has been asked from the Dominion Government to ship their ore and concentrates into this country. Representatives of gold mines in Alaska have asked for similar permission.

While the requests are now before the Department of Finance, decision will have to be made by Cabinet at Ottawa. If the request is granted, it is estimated, exists of the applications being granted.

A BIG DIFFERENCE
Under the proposal, the United States mine interests would be able to receive world market prices for their gold in place of the fixed American mint price of $20.67 per ounce. The average price in Canada of late has been running about $29.50 per ounce.

Canadian smelters in Northern Ontario and at Trail, B.C., would smelt the United States and Alaska gold ore and concentrates. It is stated, if the proposal is achieved, under the Washington ruling.

WAY IS CLEARED
The way to ship gold concentrates and "unsmelted ore" out of the United States was cleared in Washington on Saturday, when gold export prohibitions were amended by the treasury department to permit the metal being sent out of the republic in those forms. Unretorted amalgam and cyanide precipitates also are allowed to be shipped out under the Washington ruling.

Member of Banking Commission

SIR CHARLES ADDIS, of London, British banker and economist, who visited Victoria yesterday as a member of the Canadian Royal Commission on Banking.

Only two submissions went before the panel in the morning, one made by the British Columbia Government, and the others by the bankers' organization. Premier Tolmie, Hon. J. W. Jones, Hon. R. J. BRITISH JURIST PRAISES BANKS

Lord Macmillan Thinks Highly of Canadian Financial Institutions

"The Canadian banks have handled the situation wonderfully well during the past few years," said Lord Macmillan, eminent British jurist, and chairman of the Canadian Royal Commission on banking, when interviewed by the Colonist yesterday.

"They have been conservative, but that, as far as is what any bank should be. In the face of what the world has had to go through during the past four years, however, the banks in Canada have done their job, and done it well."

Speaking of general economic conditions in Canada, Lord Macmillan stated that in his opinion, the Dominion was in excellent shape. "It is not possible," he said, "to speak authoritatively on the conditions of a country when you are merely passing through it, but from what I have observed, I must say that Canada is pulling out of the depression with greater ease and alacrity than are a number of other countries."

FLEE TO SAFETY IN NIGHT ATTIRE

Inmates of County Home Quit Endangered Building—Rooftop Fire Is Extinguished

ANTIGONISH, N.S., Aug. 15 (CP).—Fire caused a swift evacuation of the Antigonish County Home early this morning, but fifty-nine inmates who fled in night attire returned to their quarters, as a roof blaze was placed quickly under control.

The fire broke out at 1 o'clock, hours after the inmates—poor and harmless—had retired for the night. Miss Mary Smith, of the institution staff, saw flames eating through the roof over the kitchen and notified Superintendent T. J. Grant, who directed an orderly exit of the fifty-nine persons.

HORTICULTURIST DIES IN OTTAWA

Dr. W. T. Macoun Succumbs After Short Illness—Had Notable Career

OTTAWA, Aug. 13 (CP).—Dr. William Terrill Macoun, Dominion horticulturist, died here today, after becoming ill on his annual inspection of experimental farms, during which he attended the World Grain Exhibition at Regina. He returned to his Ottawa home early this morning. Dr. Macoun was in his sixty-fifth year.

Born at Belleville, Ont., in 1869, Dr. Macoun joined the Dominion Central Experimental Farm when eighteen years of age.

Surviving him are one son and three daughters, residing in Ottawa, and a sister, Mrs. R. A. Kingham, Wallingford, Vt. The funeral will be held on Tuesday.

Dr. Macoun was the son of the late Professor Macoun, who occupied the position of Dominion botanist for more than a quarter of a century, and Mrs. Macoun, who spent their declining years at Sidney, with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Wheeler. Dr. Macoun was in Victoria last year for a few days.

INCREASED CAPITAL FOR B.C. INDUSTRY SEEN AS REAL NEED

whereby the provinces could obtain Federal money for essential purposes more advantageously than at present?

7. Would settlement of homesteaded and given arable lands for their own maintenance strengthen the financial standing of the Province?

CAPITAL IS NEEDED

Capital, said the Government, was necessary for the development of natural resources, and its logical sources were the banks and other financial institutions. Insufficient financing would militate against success of any enterprise, once started. On perishable products there was no time for delay in arranging loans. In the face of stiff competition, half of 1 per cent less in interest rates might mean the difference between failure and success of any enterprise.

The Government argued that it was definitely in the minds of the people that there had been a tendency to take undue advantage of the Province's need for money by exaction of interest rates such as had been paid by the Province on some of its borrowings. There was, too, the feeling that the Dominion ought to be able to do something really worth while in the way of assisting the provinces to finance at less cost, the Government submitted.

LAND SETTLEMENT

The whole financial outlook of the Province might be changed if satisfactory settlement could be secured in respect to a portion of its 25,000,000 acres of arable lands, the brief said at another point.

The banks, it conceded finally, which was heartily reciprocated by Baron Macmillan, and his conferees on the board, who referred to the establishment of banking facilities. In presenting the Government's case, Premier Tolmie took occasion to extend a welcome to the commission, which was heartily reciprocated by Baron Macmillan, and his conferees on the board, who referred to the establishment of banking facilities.

At the close of the public hearing in the afternoon, the commission returned to the Legislative Buildings, where it again conferred with the cabinet, renewing an adjournment begun at 10 a.m., and interrupted by the morning session at the court-house. The meeting with the Government was in camera. No additional statement was made public.

BANKING REVIEWED

Mayne Hamilton, accompanied by E. W. Lamprey, presented a review of banking practice in British Columbia, on behalf of the Pacific section of the Canadian Bankers' Association. It brought out the risk of the lenders, the countless depositor large and small, and showed geographical, seasonal and other difficulties under which banking must operate in the province.

The brief suggested that importation of new capital in considerable volume was the essential requirement for proper development of the primary resources of the country, and noted that, doing chiefly an export business, British Columbia enterprises were dependent on world markets and world prices for sale of their commodities.

BERRY LOAN CANVASSED

Meeting the implication of the Government's question as to tight purse strings on commercial loans, the bankers dealt at some length with the Government's argument in relation to financing of processed strawberries of a few years ago. The banks had been willing to lend the money to process the berries, but found the growers had not relinquished individual title to their share of the crop; nor had the Pro-

When Accident Nearly Ended Record Flight

NATIVES of Flat, Alaska, are shown here helping to right Post's airplane, the Winnie Mae, after he had nosed over in a cross wind after being in the air 22 hours and 32 minutes on his flight from Khabarovsk, Siberia. The only damage was a broken propeller, and a new one was brought to Flat by Joe Crosson, pioneer Alaska flyer. The new propeller installed, Post continued his flight to Fairbanks, and then on to Edmonton and New York. He carried this photo to New York.

PERSONNEL OF BOARD

Baron Macmillan, chairman, and Sir Charles Addis, both of London, England; Sir Thomas White, Toronto; Beaudry Leman, Montreal; and Premier J. E. Brownlie, Edmonton, composed the panel which opened its Canadian tour here after initial hearings at Ottawa.

WHEAT POOLS CITED

Premier J. E. Brownlie, of Alberta, suggested that Prairie wheat pools had long since overcome the difficulty of ownership rights in grain, sufficiently to permit hypothecation of the crop for financing purposes through the pools. Okanagan apple growers and some forms of other co-operative associations had conducted their business with the Pacific section of the Canadian Bankers' Association. It brought out the risk of the lenders, the countless depositor large and small, and showed geographical, seasonal and other difficulties under which banking must operate in the province.

The brief suggested that importation of new capital in considerable volume was the essential requirement for proper development of the primary resources of the country, and noted that, doing chiefly an export business, British Columbia enterprises were dependent on world markets and world prices for sale of their commodities.

BANKING SYSTEM

The system of branch banking with a certain amount of autonomy in even the smallest centres, met geographical difficulties, in which huge territories had to be covered, with two-thirds of the population in a few large centres, and one-third distributed over the province as a whole, Mr. Hamilton continued.

Managers of the branches in the smallest centres have authority now to lend up to $1,000, and ordinarily $2,000. In towns the authorization was between $3,000 and $5,000; and in cities of the larger size, between $10,000 and $15,000 under certain conditions. Inspectors could exercise additional authority, and quick action on loans had in the past been secured by wire in communication with eastern head offices.

REALIZABLE SECURITY

In logging, only logs actually in the water could be considered as on their way to market for sale. In lumbering, mill products were more advanced, but also subject to tariffs and world conditions. In mining, ores mined and concentrated were tangible assets; but ores in the ground or prospects of future recoveries were not realizable. In agriculture, the apple crop was the big thing in British Columbia; while livestock and other phases of agriculture had again different requirements.

He represented an organization that in its last annual report had record of 150,000 borrowers, Mr. Hamilton continued. Of these, 90 per cent were borrowers of $1,000 or less; while 96 per cent of all loans were made in respect to sums not exceeding $5,000. Development of natural resources, such as contemplated in the Government's brief, presupposed not the lending of sums on deposit in British Columbia, but the import of considerable sums of fresh capital, he commented.

VARIOUS METHODS

In miscellaneous lumber products, the banks financed poles on contracts, ties at railroad and a certain amount of Eastern Canadian lumber shipments were financed on time drafts, as was pulp and paper, the latter mostly in the hands of large concerns. Fishery loans were on the canned product. Farmers required individual loans, varying from small advances on milk cheques to larger operations in connection with large livestock ranches. Large or small, all had the same treatment, providing dependable character and reasonable liquid security went into the bargain, Mr. Hamilton declared.

Small retailers were carried by wholesalers, to whom they were indebted in the first place. Warehouse receipts on products were often the basis for monthly credits in commercial transactions. In every line of business there was not only a practice, but sound reasons for that practice. In general, banks tried to maintain a position on loans that could be liquidated annually, he concluded.

Mr. Hamilton answered a number of general questions by the commissioners. The board was indebted for the admirable picture

At the opening of the session

Mayor David Leeming extended an official welcome to the members of the Commission on behalf of the City of Victoria. At the conclusion of the mayor's address, Lord Macmillan asked concerning the relationship between the municipality and the banks here. To this Mayor Leeming replied they were most cordial and explained the borrowing powers vested in municipalities by the Municipal Act.

BANKS IN ORIENT

G. A. Tidball, representing the Chamber of Commerce of Dunsmuir, presented a short resolution regarding the establishment of branches of Canadian banks in the Orient or the establishment of a government system in that area to assist in trade between Canada and the Orient. Others who appeared before the Commission in the afternoon were R. H. B. Ker, representing the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, who said the Chamber had no criticisms to offer concerning the Canadian banking system; W. A. Laming, M. B. Jackson, K.C., who spoke on the Department Industries Act; Robert Cassidy, K.C., and president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities. Mr. Crouch said he had heard complaints from some of the Reeves of inability to obtain funds from banks pending payment of relief allowances from Dominion and Provincial Governments. He also presented the Union's resolution on banking passed at the Spring convention of the Municipal Union here. The Commission also acknowledged receipt of a communication from Walter Dandridge, which was not read.

CREDIT CONTROL

Mr. Jackson, who has an intimate knowledge of industrial finance in the province owing to his familiarity with the Department of Industries Act, addressed the commission and made a strong plea for the decentralization of the credit-giving powers of banks in Canada, and suggested that instead of the control being placed in the head offices of the various banking institutions, mainly in the East, there should be some system of zoning.

PRESENTS BRIEF

Mr. Cassidy, in his brief, referred to the Imperial Parliamentary inquiry by the Macmillan committee on finance and industry in 1931, over which Lord Macmillan presided, and which included such men as Lord Bradbury, Rt. Hon. Reginald McKenna, J. M. Keynes, economist, secretary of the Economic Society. The report in substance was that both those engaged in the practical business of banking and finance and the practical economists, who, as observers and critics, endeavor to expound the rational in that system.

Sinclair Feels That He's Quite the Hero If Hardly a Martyr

Concludes His "Swell Words" Have Upset the Government of India—Has to Take Some Back When Too Assertive

BY GORDON SINCLAIR
SOMEWHERE IN INDIA—Your old pal Sinclair takes a loop in his belt today and steps out in a brand new set of adjectives.
"Russian spy," that's me. "Empire wrecker," that's me, too.
I'm bold and bad and sinister. Probably go around slapping little girls, robbing lonely widows, or teasing blind children.
Last year I prowled the back alleys of this fabulous Hindustan and wrote enough words to fill this whole paper. Some people thought those words were swell and some thought they were terrible. They were both right.
The Government of India started finding clippings about me in their mail. The chief checker-upper of newspaper clippings grew purple around the gills when he read about stuffed shirts and yes-men. In proper indignation he thundered that something must be done. Somebody squirmed at mention of yes-men. But more and more clippings kept coming in and some of them pleased the checker-uppers very much. Then one day their eye fell on what they were looking for. Sinclair was coming back to India. Oh!

CHECK THE WHIPPERSNAPPER
So the police or military intelligence people at all the ports were told to keep a sharp look-out for this sinister young whippersnapper and keep check on his movements. Rangoon won the prize. It was easy to win because I had written myself that I'd land in Rangoon. A half-caste policeman, who hadn't the faintest idea what it was all about, asked me a lot of questions. Among these were: "What is the Toronto Star?" A. "A newspaper." Q. "A what?" A. "A newspaper." Q. "This word Toronto—what does it mean?" A. "It is the name of a city." Q. "A city? I never heard of it." A. "Perish the thought. It is a bigger city than Rangoon. There are only two cities in India as big as it." Q. "Where are you going to stay in Rangoon?" A. "At the Silver Grill." Q. "And if it's full?" A. "At the Royal Hotel."
They let me ashore with some of my luggage. The big parcels were held. The Silver Grill was full, so I went, not to the Royal, but to the Strand.
Dirty work. The guy's trying to hide out on us. Cops came down and examined the register.
Next day a military intelligence officer came to ask questions. He was polite and very friendly, but he wanted to know where I was going and when and why. I told him. He gave me some good advice and we parted.
Late that afternoon I was summoned to the customs house. Probably this had nothing whatever to do with the police or the army folk, but it seemed unusual.
"You have here one trunk?" a pasty-faced clerk in red skirt and turban asked. "Yes." "You have filed a declaration that says this contains personal effects?" "Yes." "You sign that as the truth?" "Certainly." "Think now do you wish to amend that declaration?" "No, I do not."

PERSONAL EFFECTS
"Very well; it is a forgery," he leered, dropping on a desk in front of me a sheet big enough to paper a wall. Somebody had gone through the trunk with a fine tooth comb and listed, under "declared," six plate holders, some movie film, thirty cigarettes, some shoes, a silver tin, some books, a bottle of aspirin, a bottle of iodine, two magazines, some hair oil and a bundle of razor blades.
"There, now," the man triumphed, "you list these as personal effects?" "Of course I do. If razor blades and aspirin and all the rest are not personal effects, what are they?"

"Come back tomorrow," the chap said abruptly, gathering up the papers. He apparently had to see the boss about something. I got the trunk two days later, after paying duty, port dues, harbor dues and other dabs of red tape.
I traveled north to the China frontier, watched the caravans come and go, and stayed until the monsoon broke with a bang and blotted out the whole landscape in sheets of rain.
One rainy night, sitting around with a group of men, the conversation persistently veered around toward the grand and glorious British nobility. I was silent. Nobility isn't my line. I prefer babies and love and teddy elephants charging down a hill.
But they wouldn't talk about babies and elephants. Talk always hung around nobility and royalty, the playing fields of Eton and all that blah. I think the boys were laying for me. Anyhow, I poo-pooed nobility pretty enough, and they were up like a pack of hounds demanding retraction.
"Take it back!" somebody yelled. "Apologize!" "Young man, in war-time that would be high treason, and you, sir, would be shot." You'd have thought I'd stolen the crown jewels or something.

HE TOOK IT BACK
I had to take it back. Some quip about earls and dukes being the bunk anyhow.
Well, that party broke up, and after a couple of weeks I took ship to Madras. Arrived there, a friend met me, and I was first off the ship. We turned all my kit over to an agent and two hours later were clicking through the blazing night toward the mountains. A cop had been down to meet me, but missed. Then he looked into the hotels. No Sinclair. They might have checked up on outboard trains. I don't know, but they didn't find me because I was in third class.
But a few days ago I came back to Madras. And there was a rather whimsical letter from my wife: "I do wish I knew when you were coming home. The summer is here and the boys keep asking for you. They are growing up now and need their father more. Besides, it's not nice to have no man around the house." I ticked off weeks on the calendar, looked up sailing lists and cabled the office: "Think inadvisable go Russia." Back flashed an answer: "Think you should go Russia—and hard on its heels came a detective.
"Russia, eh?" "So that's it." The police had been told to do things about me. They hadn't known why, but now they knew. They missed me, but here I was spending rupees after rupees in palaver about Russia. A dangerous man, that was me.
"We want a detailed list of where you've been since arriving in Madras." I gave that. "And where do you go from here?" "North." "But how?" "Where do you stop and when?" "I don't know." "You must know." "Sorry, but I don't." The detective went away dissatisfied. I strolled to a ticket office and booked for Pondicherry. That's south. And it's in French India. And you can get a French ship there for Europe. And once you're in French India, British India cops can't worry you.
My reason was perfectly simple. Rev. Bennett, Toronto missionary, is driving north from the hills to his home. He is curious about French India and wants to see the place. So I do. So we arranged to meet there, and I'd continue the northern jaunt with him. Likewise we'd cut off a few miles by skirting around Madras.
But detectives, being what they are, view this with burning suspicion. When I went to get my passport fixed up it was detained. So was I. In a room full of spider webs, slopped-on whitewash, cracked chairs, packing cases and stink, they told me to wait. Half-breed cops filed the broken chairs. A Brahmin clerk answered all my queries with "wait." And at the moment I'm still waiting with the peculiar feeling of hair creeping around the back of my neck.

All I have to do now is steal the great pigeon-blood ruby from the eye of some idol, and the stage will be set for one of those circus trials.

Hundreds of citizens and intimate friends paid fitting tribute to the late Dr. Lewis Hall at the funeral service held yesterday in Sands Mortuary, Ltd., Chapel and at Ross Bay Cemetery, where an impressive Masonic service was held at the graveside. The chapel was packed to overflowing, and scores of floral tributes were banked on the altar, evincing the sincere sympathy that was felt over Dr. Hall's passing.
Prior to the service, G. Jennings Burnett, organist at St. John's Church, played on the chapel organ Chopin's "Prelude in C Minor," some improvisations of his own, and finally Chopin's "Funeral March."

A short eulogy by Mr. Church followed. In making reference to Dr. Hall's illness, Mr. Church paid tribute to the almost unparalleled devotion in spirit of Dr. Hall, who scarcely left the bedside of her husband. The deceased was loved by the community which he had served so well. He helped the poor and those in distress and in all agencies that worked for the betterment of mankind he found a place.

Following the eulogy, the congregation sang "Forever With the Lord," after which Mr. Church closed the service with several short prayers.

As the congregation left the chapel, the organist played "O. Rest in the Lord," from "The Messiah"; Dvorak's Largo from "The New World Symphony," and "Abide With Me."

Super Shell... without former 3¢ premium
... a nation-wide sensation!

Letters and telegrams are pouring in. Motorists praising Super Shell. Dealers and fuel depots demanding "more." The entire country, it seems, wanted just such a "new deal" in gasoline.

This new Super Shell will give your car the same flashing response, the easy-starting and hair-trigger get-away that millions enjoyed from Super Shell gasoline when it sold at a 3¢ premium.

This new Super Shell curbs "climbing knocks" in Cadillacs and Packards just as it smooths out the performance of Fords and Chevrolets. There is not another first-grade gasoline that has as high an anti-knock rating.

And what is more important, Super Shell has been made to give extra mileage. In Shell's great western refineries, the too volatile parts in ordinary gasoline are taken out of Super Shell. And all sluggish parts are eliminated. The result is a gasoline that positively reduces waste in your motor.

Try Super Shell today. Find out why it is the talk of motorists from here to the Atlantic Coast.

THE VALUE OF SILVER

The silver conference reached at the World Monetary Agreement means the abandonment of agitation for bimetalism. It probably means, as well, that there is no intention of increasing the silver contents of subsidiary coinage. Mr. K. I. Franklin, writing to The London Times, however, raises some pertinent issues affecting the new agreement. Under the provisions, India and Spain have the option of selling or not selling between them an average of 40,000,000 ounces of silver per annum for four years. On the other hand the United States, Canada, Mexico and Australia, who produce nearly all the silver in the world, are engaged definitely to purchase an average of 35,000,000 ounces a year or about 20 per cent of the world's production, based on that of 1932.

The correspondent in question believes the arrangement would work perfectly if the ratio between supply and demand remained more or less static. Four years, however, is a long time in the silver market. In the past four years there have been notable changes. In 1929 the average price of silver in New York was $53.30 cents; in 1930, $38.46 cents; in 1931, $29.01 cents and in July, 1932, $27.06 cents. The question arises as to the number of changes that may occur in the next four years, as, for instance, arising out of a decision of the Indian Treasury not to sell its full quota, China settling down to more normal business and using more silver than she has been using recently. Moreover, Mr. Franklin points out, the Indian peasants may have a period of relative prosperity and start once again purchasing silver freely for bangles and hoarding.

There is also the likelihood that manufactured silver "may in the near future be marketed both here (Britain) and abroad in a reasonable manner at prices that bear proportion to the cost of production when modern methods are used; and last but not least, it should be borne in mind that the recommendation of the silver sub-committee of the International Chamber of Commerce, that metallurgists should endeavor to discover a means of producing unobtainable silver, has at last borne fruit. One wants to see a reasonable rise in the gold value of silver, but it is, I think, essential that the risk of too great a rise in silver should be avoided. Silver can stand a moderate rise, but if it were to appreciate in value too suddenly or to too great an extent the effect on the China trade would be little short of disastrous. That China must be able to sell if it is to buy is an accepted fact."

UNIFICATION IN GERMANY

What is now transpiring in Germany under Nazi rule is a movement in European history which, however disapproved in other countries, is likely to have a profound influence not only on Germany herself but on the world. Lord Parmoor has been in Germany and has written some of his impressions of what is taking place. He does not approve of Nazism, but he sees the strength of the movement as founded on an intense desire to promote German unity and "to carry forward the principles of unification so closely connected with the policy of Bismarck." He sees the movement as largely instigated by the conditions of the Treaty of Versailles, and, "by failure to implement the obligations solemnly promised on the occasion of the signature of that Treaty."

The present Government in Germany, according to Lord Parmoor, has vigorously attacked the unemployment problem. He does not see in that Government any menace to the peace of the world and alludes hopefully to the meeting between the German Chancellor and the president of the Disarmament Conference. There is a meeting forecast between Herr Hitler, Mr. Arthur Henderson and Premier Daladier of France which Lord Parmoor hopes may lead to the reassembling of the Disarmament Conference in the autumn. On the whole Lord Parmoor found conditions in Germany "quiet and normal." There is real evidence, he says, that the people of Germany desire peace based on a fair application of the principle of equality of status.

SOCIALISM AND DICTATORSHIP

According to The London Times of July 20, the Labor Party in the Old Country has announced that at its forthcoming conference resolutions will be introduced which will call for vigorous action and effective measures to combat war and oppose the menace of Fascism. The Times gives its blessing to these proposed resolutions in language which, it is to be hoped, will attract the attention of the Socialist Party of Canada, and particularly the head of the organization known as the C.C.F., a label which seems to have been adopted for strategic purposes in the meantime. The Times article says in startlingly plain and outspoken fashion that the Labor Party, if it is sincerely desirous of cleansing itself from the contamination of the policies to be denounced by the resolutions, must also depose those party leaders who are now in the ascendant, and this for the simple reason that it is by means of war and a dictatorship that the Socialists hope to grasp power in the Old Land. True, they do not wish for war with a foreign enemy, but they have declared the "class war" and are engaged in waging it.

If they had envisaged the struggle for power merely as a constitutional process carried on in the traditional manner by discussion and controversy in the press and in the forum by rational methods of persuasion, they would not have used the term class war. That term denotes and is intended to denote the use of violence for the overthrow of the present existing institutions of society, parliamentary, legal, economic. The question is pointedly asked: Is the Socialist Party sincere in denouncing war, or are we to understand that while avoiding war with foreign nations, they intend to carry on a war within their own?

The Socialists should look into their own hearts also to discover whether their denunciation of Fascism applies to all kinds of dictatorship or only to one form of it, the Mussolini or the Hitler type, for example. Would they have any objection to setting up a Socialist dictatorship at home? Apparently they would not, if we can accept the statement categorically made by The Times, a respected, responsible and trustworthy journal. The exact words of The Times are here reproduced:

"Socialism is the creed of the Labor movement. Until now, Socialism has so blinded British Labor that it has been unable to see the evil in dictatorship that professed itself to be Socialist. Indeed, Socialism has so blinded some of the leaders of British Labor to the evils and wrongs of dictatorship that they have been affirming, even during the period of the Hitler Government, that when Socialism attains to power in this country it must immediately establish a dictatorship of its own. This suggestion has been the chief contribution of the Labor Party since it succeeded the I.L.P. as the party's pacemaker."

Mr. Woodsworth and his followers should ponder these things and either dissociate themselves from the aims and methods of the British Labor Party, abandon the class war, and utterly renounce the idea of dictatorship in any of its forms; or else let the people know what is in store for them by a frank and honest avowal of war to the knife upon the upholders of the structure of our present economic and political system—a policy to be entrusted to the hands of a dictator of the Socialist type.

A NAMBY-PAMBY AGE

The increase in crime in so many countries is set down by one commentator as an outcome of the "namby-pamby age in which we live." In other words, there is too much coddled of wrongdoers. The way to combat the force exercised by criminals is by force. British judges are convinced of this and hence their sentences. They remain uninfluenced by maulin sentiment among any section of the public. Mr. Trevor Thornton-Berry says that "more restriction of liberty is no deterrent to the callous and calculating criminal, who is almost invariably a coward." I cannot see that there is any true analogy between the birching of a schoolboy for reprehensible peccadilloes and the use of the cat in dealing with a hardened and violent law breaker. Those whose duty it is to administer such corporal punishment can surely never be degraded thereby. If society is to be adequately protected against crimes of violence, then a proper sense of values is an absolute qua non. There can be no real degradation except in a sentimentally misplaced and unsocial sympathy with the wrongdoer."

A reporter of Long Island has written to Professor Albert Einstein seeking information on the relationship of love and gravitation. He says it seems to him that with the earth revolving as it does that "part of the time a person is standing right side up; part of the time, on the lower side, he is standing upside down, upheld by gravitation; and part of the time he is sticking out on the earth at right angles and part of the time at left angles." Then he asks: "Would it be reasonable to assume that it is while a person is standing on his head—or rather upside down—he falls in love and does other foolish things?" Professor Einstein's reply does not add much light to the subject for he says: "Falling in love is by no means the most foolish thing mankind does—but gravitation cannot be held responsible for that."

The dread of evil is a much more forcible principle of human actions than the prospect of good.—Locke.

Reason is the mistress and queen of all things.—Cicero.

SCIENCE AND SOCIALISM

Sir—When Wellington was asked how he had succeeded in beating Napoleon's "invincible" marshals in Spain, he replied, "I'll tell you; their plans of campaign were like magnificent sets of harness. All very beautiful, very useful even, till they break, and then you're done for. My plans are made of bits of rope; if one of them gives, I tie a knot in it, whip up my horse, and push on again." Personally I have a sincere admiration for the old Duke who liked playing with children, but I also glory in the thought that the citizens of Glasgow considered Sir John Moore worthy of a statue. Of course, nowadays, Sir Arthur Currie is relegated to the background, and future examples of the sculptor's art in this city of Victoria will likely be erected to experts on mass production, mass consumption, mass ideas, and prophets of human equality outside the graveyard. Such is the progress of science.

As a humble student I have already asked Mr. A. B. Sanders anent the exact composition of suet dumplings, or the law of diminishing returns of the other half. I desired to know whether an equal distribution of material goods would make for the development of the human mind. I am sorry to ignore, and in spite of my puny endeavors to show him that science is a poor pole on which to hang anything, he tells me I'm a distant forty-second cousin of the hero of the retreat to Corunna, and admires what he calls "the scientific advance in modern developments of industrial technique." Certainly power is the servant of man, but surely Mr. A. B. Sanders understands that man, born of woman, is not a machine; entirely actuated by motives of profit and personal aggrandizement. I did not deny that selfishness will conquer greed, but I denied that selfishness or selfishness have anything to do with science. If he thinks that the profit motive has made man, the slave of the machine, why should he be so persistent in the profit motive—in the shape of an equal distribution of wealth—as the only set of beautiful harness complete with blinkers and brass mountings, compatible with human nature? That wholly an appeal to the baser instincts of the greed of humanity.

Heracles assured us long ago that "you cannot step twice into the same river; for fresh waters are ever flowing in upon you," and I am not prepared to dispute the precious gem of thought. The river in which we have our being happens to have a few more encumbering than that usual which may be due to "the scientific advance in modern developments of industrial technique" or some such jargon, but it enters my Highland heart that "the use of the machine in science, the development of the technique of engineering" is somehow marching out of step.

Piata had ideas; in fact, he is the only philosopher who felt that which an idea is; but even he considered it necessary to have philosopher-poet-kings; a breed of superior shortness to improve the lot of the earth at right angles and part of the time at left angles." Then he asks: "Would it be reasonable to assume that it is while a person is standing on his head—or rather upside down—he falls in love and does other foolish things?" Professor Einstein's reply does not add much light to the subject for he says: "Falling in love is by no means the most foolish thing mankind does—but gravitation cannot be held responsible for that."

The dread of evil is a much more forcible principle of human actions than the prospect of good.—Locke.

Reason is the mistress and queen of all things.—Cicero.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

A WELL BID GRAND SLAM

Probably one of the best examples I have bid in the world is a four-five no trump convention in reaching grand slam contracts occurred in a recent championship tournament. Although the hand was a question was an absolute spread for about fifteen tricks, most of the teams playing it failed to reach the contract of seven-odd due to their inability to locate all the cards—that is, all four aces and the king of trumps. Through the use of the four-five no trump convention the North player, holding but a little over three honor-tricks, was able to jump from four no trump to a grand slam.

RECOVERY IN ALBERTA SLOW

Premier Brownlee Forecasts Hard Struggle Owing to Crop Failures

"The Province of Alberta, while the northern portion is seeing improved times because of better crops, still has a hard struggle ahead of it," said Premier J. E. Brownlee, when interviewed here yesterday.

"This condition is due to the fact that the southern portion is suffering considerably because of adverse weather conditions and bad crops."

"It is quite impossible to make any comparison as regards the relative position of our province and any other part of Canada as far as recovery is concerned, because Alberta relies solely on agriculture."

"If the entire province were enjoying the same success with crops that the northern part is, then I could say with perfect safety that Alberta was showing signs of recovery. But the condition of one-half is offsetting that of the other half, and that means a certain amount of hard pulling yet to come."

Mayor and Reeves To Officiate at Gas Main Opening

NEW gas mains which have been laid to outlying parts of the Greater Victoria area will be officially opened at a ceremony to be held at the Victoria Gas Company's plant at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

A. T. Goward, Mayor David Leeming, Reeve W. H. Mayhew and Reeve Albert Head will officiate at the ceremony, which will witness the turning of the valve which will release the gas for the new mains, laid at a cost of more than $125,000.

sees by any other country, and we want to see conditions as they are and to establish personal contacts with the various interests," he stated.

Lord Macmillan warned the people of the Dominion not to expect miracles. "Let no one assume that we are necromancers and that we can wield a wand over the Dominion and everything will come right again. We will address ourselves to the task with a real hope that out of our deliberations we will be able to place a body of constructive material before the legislators that will be of assistance to them and so that your institutions may be better able to serve you," Lord Macmillan declared.

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE
Leaving the work of the commission, Lord Macmillan reviewed briefly the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council which hears appeals from all parts of the British Empire. While on this topic he took occasion to remark that justice was the mainstay of government. "We are proud of our judicial system because we are all partners in the preservation of law and order." He told a number of inauspicious stories in connection with the work of the committee and remarked that yesterday, August 14, was the centenary of the establishment of the committee and incidentally the day of the opening session of the Canadian Banking Commission.

Lord Macmillan was introduced by W. T. Straith, president of the Canadian Club, and Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Premier of British Columbia, extended a vote of thanks on behalf of the club membership. All members of the commission attended the luncheon, together with a number of the Provincial Government ministers.

"Gold Diggers of 1933" Emphasizes All-Star Cast, Including Baby Keeler and Ginger Rogers

They've done it again! Warner Bros., who took the amusement world by storm some months ago with their sensational success, "42nd Street," have come forward with a new surprise and a new accomplishment even greater in scope and promise.

The "Gold Diggers of 1933," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, thrilled its first audiences and issued a challenge to those who believe they had seen everything that the screen has to offer. It is as different as it is spectacular; as entertaining as it is breath-taking. Obviously, all the resources of the great studio were placed at the disposal of Director Mervyn LeRoy when he started work on "Gold Diggers of 1933." Here is the most lavish use of stellar names, of tuneful music, of ensembled beauty in chorus sequences that are positively thrilling of story values and production costs ever to come out of Hollywood.

Garnished with the greatest "show" ever screened, thanks to the amazing ingenuity and ability of Busby Berkeley, whose choruses helped make "42nd Street" memorable, "Gold Diggers of 1933" is the story of the personalities and problems behind the footlights.

EMPIRE "The Fires of Fate," the film version of the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's famous book, now at the Empire Theatre, tells the dramatic story of a man who has been given but six months more to live and his subsequent adventures in the desert which culminate in a fierce fight with a raiding tribe. Norman Walker, the director, succeeded in obtaining the full co-operation of the Egyptian Government, which gave every assistance in its power. Also on the same bill is Stanley Lupino in "The Love Race."

PLAYHOUSE Although his name doesn't appear in the cast, Michael is one of the most important players in Marion Davies' new picture, "Peg O' My Heart." Michael is a nine-year-old mongrel dog who is with Peg during all her trials and tribulations. He has been in more than a hundred films and never needs to be told what to do.

Upper right shows an ox-cart such as was used in the "Old Spanish Days" to haul wine casks from the vineyards to the taverns while light-hearted señoritas and caballeros clambered aboard. Lower left pictures a Spanish grandee, while lower right is focal point of this year's celebration—Mission Santa Barbara—where the tenth annual fiesta of "Old Spanish Days in Santa Barbara" was held last week.

MRS. E. S. GUNN TAKEN BY DEATH

Had Resided in Victoria for the Past Fifty Years—Funeral on Thursday

Mrs. Elizabeth Street Gunn, aged sixty-nine years, a resident of Victoria for the past fifty years, passed away yesterday in the Royal Jubilee Hospital. She later resided at 1025 Pandora Avenue, and is survived by one son, Lafayette Gunn, at home. She was born in Ontario.

The funeral of Mrs. Gunn will be held at 2:30 o'clock, at 1025 Pandora Avenue, and is officiated by Rev. Canon Chadwick. Many sorrowing friends attended and there was a profusion of floral tributes.

The pallbearers were E. E. Heath, Harry Matthews, J. H. Mansell, H. Parker, A. Godtel and J. T. Braden. The remains were laid at rest at Rose Bay Cemetery.

FUNERAL TODAY
The funeral of Richard James Styles will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Canon Chadwick officiating. Many sorrowing friends will be present and the interment will be made in Ross Bay Cemetery.

DOMINION Some of Hollywood's stars get a bigger thrill out of photographing somebody or something than of being photographed. The most rabid "photo fiends" among the stars are Claudette Colbert, Leslie Howard and Ben Lyon. Miss Colbert and Lyon teamed in "I Cover the Waterfront," now at the Dominion Theatre, had ample opportunity, while they were working in Reinecke's romantic thriller for United Artists, to make extensive additions to their private collections of photographic art.

"BE MINE TONIGHT" HAS MANY PLAYERS

The talents and efforts of many nationalities are blended into a harmonious and delightful romance in "Be Mine Tonight," the Universal special, which has been engaged for the Dominion.

In the first place, the picture was produced by a British company, Gaumont, in Berlin, under the direction of a Russian, Anatole Litwak. Most of the exteriors were photographed by German cameramen on locations in Switzerland, while the interiors were made at the Berlin studios of Ufa, with a cast headed by Kiepura, who is Polish, and Magda Schneider, a bewitching German girl. Bonnie Hale, popular English music hall star, plays one of the leads opposite Kiepura, while the comedy is provided by Betty Chester, Edmund Gwenn and Athene Seyler, all well-known English comedians.

FINE AVIATION STORY IS COMING TO EMPIRE

Britain's air epic, with one of the most modern and sporting events yet screened by the Old Country comes in "The King's Cup," a British and Dominion picture, which will be at the Empire Theatre for six days, commencing August 18. It shows the men and women dare-devils of the sky, and sensational and thrilling scenes with many new angles of flying screened in this type of story. It deals with the plucky efforts of a young English flying girl to help her sweetheart win the famous cup from an unscrupulous competitor.

The story, written with complete attention to technical details by Britain's famous pioneer aviator, Sir Alan Cobham, provides a great drama of the skies and the new angles of flying against back-grounds of the Old Country not generally seen out here. The stars are Harry Milton, a brilliant flying actor, and Dorothy Bouchier, remembered for her delightful playing in "Carnival" and "The Blue Danube."

Public preference for Goodyears for 18 years is no haphazard verdict. Tires are not a small purchase. The motoring public thinks before it buys—and year after year its first thought is Goodyear.

The number of Goodyear Tires in service almost equals all other brands combined. This overwhelming preference, backed by the motoring public's hard-earned money, in lean years or good years, is the best answer to bewildering claims and boasts.

PERSONAL ITEMS and SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Wedding in California Interesting

Of great interest to many Victorians is the announcement of the marriage in California of Miss Evelyn Wood, daughter of Mrs. R. B. Wood, 2216 Fifth Street, Santa Monica, formerly of Victoria, to Norman Gunderson Williams, 12842 Beverly Boulevard, which took place on Sunday, August 6, in the gardens of Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Hromadka, Twenty-Third Street, Santa Monica. The ceremony was performed at 5 o'clock by Dr. Charles H. Scott.

Miss Marion Walton was maid of honor, while Mr. Robert Oster acted as best man. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ernest Wood, approached the improvised altar, under the trees, along an aisle formed by a wide white ribbon held by four daintily dressed young ladies. They were Miss Evelyn Pollard, Mrs. George Wright, Mrs. Jarmore Hubb and Mrs. George Conner. Behind the bride, wearing pastel frocks, held bouquets of flowers in the same shades as her dress.

PLAYED WEDDING MUSIC
Miss Marjorie Wright played the small organ which had been placed at the top of the garden's stone steps, down which the bride advanced to the aisle. She played the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" for the processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" for the recessional. The groom is a player in the Santa Monica band, which played a group of numbers before the ceremony. Miss Evelyn Connor, soprano, sang a group of songs.

The bride's frock was a floor-length model of orchid satin, with which she wore a small hat of the same material. The skirt of the gown fell in many ruffles to the ankles. She carried yellow roses and lilies of the valley.

A reception was held in the Hromadka home, after which Mr.

Victoria Man Is Married in San Francisco

Mrs. C. Teifer entertained between forty and fifty guests at her home, 2648 Rose Street, recently in honor of her son, Captain Andrew P. Teifer, and his bride, who were married in California on July 26 after spending their honeymoon here, they returned to Hayward, California, to their appointment.

Following the wedding which appeared in The Hayward Journal:

"With the marriage in San Francisco of Captain Lillian D. Miller and Captain Andrew P. Teifer, a romance which blossomed in Canada some years ago was consummated.

"Wearing full dress uniform of the Salvation Army, they were wed by Brigadier Sanson at 7:30 o'clock, in the Territorial Training College, where the bride carried a beautiful bouquet of gardenias, lilies of the valley and roses. She was attended by Miss Janet Teifer, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, and Captain Clarine Croen, as bridesmaid.

Mrs. Croen wore uniform and carried pink roses, while Miss Teifer wore a creation of blue crepe and black velvet, carrying cream roses.

THE WEDDING MARCH
The groom was attended by Captain Daniel Rody as best man. Acting as flower girl and ring bearer respectively were Miss Dolores Houghton and Paul Bodine. The wedding march was sung by the Divisional Songsters, and the couple, led by two lieutenants of the "Flight It Through Session" cadets, bore the American and Salvation Army flags.

"A welcome by Mrs. C. Teifer, of Victoria, mother of the groom, and by Captain Daniel Rody, representing the Miller family, who were unable to attend was then given. The Training College quartette rendered "Oh, Man of Galilee," which was composed by Commissioner Hoggard. The benediction was given by Adjutant Eberhart.

"The exit march was played by Captain Muriel Creighton. Preceding the ceremony, the song, prayer and Bible reading were led by Major E. O. Higgins, divisional commander. A reception for the immediate bridal group was then held in the Training College social hall.

Mrs. C. Teifer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Miller, of Seattle, has been in the Army with her husband for the past six months and has made many friends."

WOMEN'S INSTITUTES
SOUTH SALTSRING
A special meeting of the South Saltspring Women's Institute was held in the Institute Hall, Fulford Harbor. The president, Mrs. R. Maxwell, was in the chair, and there was a fair attendance. In the absence of the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. T. Reid acted in that capacity. Following discussions regarding the purchase of a flag and pennants for the proposed flagpole at the Institute Hall, instructions were given to ascertain the cost of erection of same. It was announced that Dr. Wiggins, eye, nose and throat specialist, would hold a free clinic for children under twelve in the hall on Thursday, August 17, starting at 2:30 p.m. Owing to the great interest in children shown by Dr. Wiggins, he had examined 150 Scouts recently, when they were in camp at Burgoyne Bay, and knowing that child welfare was part of the work undertaken by the Women's Institute, had made this offer. Final arrangements were then made for the Thirteenth Annual Fall Show to be held on September 8, at the Institute Hall, Fulford. A dance will follow in the evening. The tea hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Drummond and Miss Gladys Shaw.

GARDEN PARTY NEXT WEEK
A garden party will be held on Wednesday, August 23, at 441 Lampson Street, through the kind permission of Major and Mrs. Piddington, to raise funds for St. Paul's Garrison Church.

CHAPTER XV

"I am not going to sit here all summer idle, waiting for Dr. Sasoon to discover things," Norah's letter continued. "There are many ways I could make money here, and I am going to try one or two. I have told Eve and Elinor that I would take children to board for the summer—or an old lady. And when the cherries come along I can make cherry butter; my mother's mother used to make it, and it is simply delicious."

"All this is a very funny experience to me, and funniest of all is to think how it commenced. Whatever happens, I shall always be glad of it. I say 'whatever' happens, because it is impossible for me to think that the original terms of our contract—you know what I mean—will not be changed. I wish you would think of this; of course you do. It makes me horribly nervous and jumpy sometimes, when I am going off to sleep, to think about—well, December 27, and I can only say that I am sure in any reasonable court such a thing would not hold for a moment."

"My money—your money—is holding out well. If you do not leave Hobart until April, you will have this letter before you sail, to wish you a marvelous trip, and to assure you that all is well here. Mother sends her kindest regards with mine."

"The letter was mailed on the last day of March. On almost every day that followed, Norah thought of Barry, and imagined more letters with fresh news, exciting news. The apple trees began to bud and the cherries and plums were balled; there was shy grass, there were dogwoods in bloom. Norah's heart swelled like the blooms themselves; she could hardly endure the miracle that met her at every door and window."

The kitchen windows were open now; the upstairs shutters thrown back; sunshine and fresh air streamed through the house, and Mrs. Oliver had a rug and a big chair in the side yard, and sat soaking in sweetness and beauty through the long sunny days of the Spring days. She and Norah moved upstairs and established themselves in one of the largest bedrooms; even Eve came back, discouraged as to job-finding, disgusted with Elinor's complacency and Elinor's husband, and fussed for days over the arrangement of her own room.

"Suppose we went in for jams, Mother; we could probably get one of the big New York firms to handle them. The Foxaway gooseberry Green. The Foxaway Strawberry Scarlet."

"What about the children you were going to board?" asked Eve.

"Oh, well, children are no trouble."

"And then how about the Foxaway Sunday lunch, two dollars? That chicken and salad and biscuits lunch."

"Yes, I know," Norah fell into thought, and Eve said, "And after all, it isn't your place, you know. Mr. Dunsun will be back—"

"He may be delayed. He said, in that letter I had from Hobart, that he wasn't sure Sasoon would want to spend next winter in Ross Bay, and if Sasoon did, he didn't think he, Mr. Dunsun, would stay."

Even as Norah talked, in her mind she was formulating various advertisements. Nothing so disfiguring as a highway sign, "Eat, Dinner Today at Foxaway." Nothing like that.

But there might be a modest card nailed up in the post office or near it, and there might be newspaper advertising in the city. Elinor's boisterous husband was a newspaper advertiser; he could advise her. It would be great fun, when Barry came back, to have some money in the bank; to be able to say to him, "I've proved that a woman can make a go of anything she attempts, if she wants to be real."

Besides that, there might be real

Rare Work of Art Here

—Photograph by Savanah.

THE original oil painting from which the above photograph was made is the property of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Turpin, "Villa di Grazia," Rockland Avenue, who brought it with them when they returned from Italy last May.

It is typical of the famous artist's best work, and may certainly be numbered as one of the most important of the city's art treasures. The artist's name is Giovanni, a Neapolitan, and he is a painter of the highest order, his work being characterized by delicate and vigorous pencil, and by unusual facility in the delineation of physiognomy.

When he had written from Hobart of his extended plan, he had said nothing of money. Norah had said nothing of money. Norah had said nothing of money. Norah had said nothing of money.

Now, early in May, there was still no money, and it behooved her to make some. She put her feet on a high stool, and looked at the clock. It was ten o'clock. She looked at the clock. It was ten o'clock.

Today at Foxaway. Nothing like that. But there might be a modest card nailed up in the post office or near it, and there might be newspaper advertising in the city.

characteristics such as wrinkles, baldness, etc.

Ribera's is another instance of special genius asserting itself despite contrary training, as he was destined for a military career, and actually made brilliant progress in these studies until he suddenly decided to devote himself to painting.

His father, fortunately, permitted him to follow his bent, and eventually he found his way to Rome, Parma, Naples, and (ultimately) success, although he experienced many hardships and actual poverty before he attained fame.

wise to tell them of the marriage of Barry Dunsun? Norah would stop at this point, shuddering. Oh, she couldn't do that!

What would her mother think, what would everyone think, of the girl who had kept all this secret for no reason at all? The world always thought it knew good reasons for such senseless behavior.

Norah would be marked for life, here in the village where she had felt so sheltered and so happy. "She felt so sheltered and so happy," she would hear, "she felt so sheltered and so happy."

"Well, what of it?" Norah would demand of herself fiercely, when her uneasy reflections reached this point. "What of it? I don't care what people think. If it's that, or leaving Foxaway, I'll tell everyone everything."

At intervals in the pondering of her own problem, she thought of Barry. It was too bad to go out of life like that, eager and interested and vital as he was. She wondered if he and his adored leader had been together at the end; had they had time for one shouted message of courage and good-bye, before the waters took them. In the sweet June nights, when the warm moonlight streamed across the window sill of her upper bedroom, and made patterns through the pear-tree leaves on the shabby old carpet of the floor, Barry would kneel a few seconds at his prayers, remembering Barry.

VOCATIONIST IS HEARD BY GYROS

F. C. Boyes, M.A., of Vancouver, Addresses Club on "Competition and the Child"

"We must recognize that there are two distinct groups of children. There is a small group of born leaders and a massive group of followers. Therefore, let us train the leaders to lead to the best of their ability and teach the followers to stick to these leaders and not lose faith in them as we have today," said F. C. Boyes, M.A., well known vocationist and head of the Alexandria School, Vancouver, in an address before members of the Gyro Club yesterday. Mr. Boyes' subject was "Competition and the Child."

"The child of today is born under the terrible handicap of competition. Competition in business, and competition between empires. When the child comes to the classroom there is still the competition urge prevalent. This tends to cause two major effects. In the girl, it causes overwork and nervous breakdowns. In the boy it causes indifference, the pupil just doing enough work so that he can get by," said Mr. Boyes.

NO REPORT CARDS

The speaker urged that report cards showing marked standings of the pupil should be abolished and ones substituted stating whether or not the child was "satisfactory." "As men fight to gain money or power, so children fight to beat their classmates. This tends to bring about bad feeling between child and teacher, and child and parent. This leads, eventually, to 'war' between parent and teacher," he maintained.

"Let us find one talent in the child and develop it thoroughly. The best things in the world today have been done by children who have striven to accomplish them without thought of reward." Several questions concerning the subject were answered by Mr. Boyes after his talk.

Mrs. Brown was trailing her diminutive husband round the big store much against his will. After purchasing several articles she paused and looked pensively at the very lampshade I wanted," she cried. "It's two guineas. Don't you think it will do, John?"

He shook his head. "No," he replied miserably. "I think it's a shade too dear."

D. B. MORGAN CAPTURES QUALIFYING ROUND

Gene Sarazen Wins Pro Golf Crown in Decisive Fashion

Defeats Willie Goggin Five and Four After Keen Display—Huge Gallery Follows Finalists—Champion Hits Back at Tommy Armour

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 14.—Storming over the fairways of Blue Mound with magic iron and a putter that routed par by four shots, Gene Sarazen won the United States professional golf championship for the third time of his illustrious career yesterday by submerging the heart-headed Willie Goggin, San Francisco, 5 and 4.

His triumph, clinched by a great afternoon finish after the 300-pound six-foot professional of a golf and held Goggin to a one-hole victory as he picked up five and then clinched the struggle by shooting a birdie four for the thirty-second green.

BIRDIES END MATCH
Gene ended the match in brilliant fashion with a pair of birdies. Play-off for the medal between Jimmie Hines, New York, and Mortie Dutra, Olin's less famous brother from Detroit, will take place this fall at Blue Mound.

ARMOUR ANSWERED
His reference to a "washed-up golfer" referred to the blast fired by Tommy Armour, Chicago, before the tournament in which he said Sarazen was "all washed-up" as a championship contender for threatening to pass up the big show of American professional golf.

That crack by the "Silver Scot" fired a greater competitive spirit in the jaunty, little ex-caddy from New York all week, as he romped on his way to the crown. Dropped by Olin Dutra, Los Angeles, he clenched his fists and said he was going to win.

Goggin, who arose from the ranks of golf's unknown this week in his march to the finals, gave Sarazen a great battle yesterday morning, only to fade in the afternoon before a changing gallery of 5,000 spectators. Only 1 up at noon, despite a 69, 1 under par, Sarazen came right in with even better play, shooting a birdie four for the thirty-second green.

FOX PASSES AL SIMMONS

A's Slugger Gets Four Out of Five to Take Lead in American League

The hitting hero of the Athletics first baseman's batting average five points to .362, eleven more than Simmons. The standing:

HOME RUN STANDING

Final preparations for next week's cricket tournament were made at a meeting of the committee in charge, held last evening. It was announced by the secretary that the details in connection with the two schedules, which have been published in these columns, a system which was rendered necessary because of the entry of eight teams, had been carefully gone into and it was found that the matches could be brought on the dates specified. In the opener, Victoria will face the Albions, while on Tuesday next the locals will tackle Portland. All matches will commence at 10 o'clock and will continue all day. The Jubilee Hospital and Beacon Hill grounds will be used. Victoria's line-up for the initial match will be as follows: L. S. V. York (capt.), J. W. D. York, A. F. Martin, T. B. Tye, J. F. Meredith, W. Shelton, J. C. Barnacle, W. P. Good, J. H. Gillespie, D. Gillespie, W. T. Williams. Outside teams are expected tomorrow and they will be met at the bat by L. S. V. York and J. C. Many Stars Enter Canadian Tourney—Gene Sarazen to Be Competitor

TORONTO, Aug. 14 (CP).—Led by Gene Sarazen, the fiery stylist from New York, and the redoubtable "Lightning" Harry Cooper, defending title holder, stars of North America's golf firmament converge on Toronto this week to battle for the Dominion's major crown, the classic open championship. The three-day tournament will start Thursday over the beautiful Royal York layout.

A total of 136 entries already have been received. Canadian sharpshooters are well to the fore with ninety-six ranging to go after the title, which has eluded the home forces since Karl Keefe, of Ottawa, breeched him in front back in 1913. Recent performances of such stalwart Canadian pros as Willie Lamb, Lex Robson, both of Toronto; Jules Huot, the Quebec ace, and the important "Sandy" Somerville, United States amateur champion, have raised high the hopes that the crown will be brought back to a native root.

Lamb, winner of the Quebec open, and Robson, holder of the Ontario pro crown and defender of the P.G.A. Canadian title, are especially highly rated.

SARAZEN FAVORITE
But Sarazen, fresh from his hard-earned triumph in the United States P.G.A. tourney, has already been installed as a pre-championship favorite. A victory in the Canadian open would give the ex-New York caddy one of the few titles that has eluded his grasp.

Favorites from across the line included Willie Diefel, of unorthodox putting fame; Jonny Farrell, of New York; Willie Goggin, San Francisco, semi-finalist and finalist respectively in the United States professional championship; MacDonell Smith, Great Neck, L.I., and Tommy Armour, both former Canadian title holders.

The classic has failed to attract an entry from Western Canada.

The Americans managed to take the cup, but only by dint of a clean sweep in the first day's play. The girls from across the water came back the second day and only missed out by one point. Here is shown Dorothy Round, England, serving them up in her tilt with Helen Jacobs, of California.

Jimmy Foxx Equals Record for Batting In Runs in A. Loop

Athletics' First Baseman Sends Home Nine Runners as Mackmen Wallop Indians 11-5—Detroit Tigers Nose Out Boston Red Sox

AMERICAN LEAGUE
CLEVELAND, Aug. 14 (AP).—Slashing out a home run, triple, double and single, to drive in nine runs for a new American League record, Jimmie Foxx today led Philadelphia Athletics to an 11-5 victory over Cleveland Indians in 10 innings.

Foxx opened up his one-man attack in the first inning, hitting a triple, with Roger Cramer and Mickey Cochrane camped on the bases, and then followed up that blast with his thirty-fifth home run of the season in the second, with all of the sacks occupied. The old mark of eight runs batted in was set by Topsy Hartzell, of the Yankees, in 1911, and has since been equaled by Harry Heilmann, Lou Gehrig, Carl Reynolds and Earl Averill. Foxx's performance left him still three short of the major league record of twelve, made by Jim Bottomley, of the Cardinals, in 1924.

Batteries—Mahahey and Cochran; Hudlin, Bean and Pytak, Spencer.

Tigers Nose Out Red Sox
DETROIT, Aug. 14 (AP).—One big inning, the seventh, in which the Tigers batted around and got six hits and four runs, gave Detroit a 6-5 victory over Boston in hard-fought series opener here today.

Elden Auker, recently brought up from Beaumont, made his debut as a starting pitcher for the Tigers, but lasted only three innings, during which Boston got seven hits and four runs.

Batteries—Pipgras, Brown, Welch and Ferrell; Auker, Fischer, Hogsett and Pasak; Hayworth.

U.S. Women's Net Meet Is Halted By Wet Courts

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Aug. 14 (AP).—Start of the women's national tennis championships at the West Side Tennis Club today was postponed until tomorrow because of wet courts.

An overnight rain ceased during the morning but the sun, needed to dry the courts, failed to penetrate the clouds.

The postponement put the whole schedule back a day, meaning the final will be contested Sunday, or Monday if Dorothy Round, the leading English player is one of the contestants. Miss Round, whose father is a minister, does not play on Sunday.

WEST INDIES TEAM FACING SEVERE LOSS

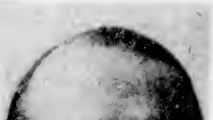

Touring Cricketers May Lose Test Match Against England by Innings

LONDON, Aug. 14 (CP).—Facing a possible innings defeat and almost certainly a decisive loss, the West Indies today had scored 106 runs in the first innings, and 190 for the loss of eight wickets in closed for the day in the third and last test match of the season against England at the Kensington Oval.

England opened play on Saturday, scoring 312 runs after a bad start. This morning, before a crowd which swelled from 3,000 at the start to 16,000 by tea-time, the West Indians began their first innings by crumbling before England's bowling. The team was all out for 100 of which George Headley, twice injured by being struck by bowled balls, contributed a disappointing nine.

NEED SEVENTY-TWO RUNS
The second-inning score of 190 for eight wickets left the West Indies to get twenty-two runs tomorrow morning with two wickets in hand, to avert an innings defeat. Victory for England tomorrow morning, confidently predicted by the experts, provided rain does not interfere, will give the home forces the series. The first test of the series resulted in a decisive victory for England at Lord's, while the second test, played at Manchester, wound up in a draw.

SOUND CITY GOLF VETERAN TURNS IN 78 TO HEAD FIELD

Tops Large List of Contenders to Win Medal Laurels in Eleventh Annual Classic at Oak Bay—J. J. Dempsey and Captain Langley in Second Berth—Locals Well Up

BAGGING five fours and a three on the last nine for a fine thirty-nine, after shooting the out-going route in the same figures, D. B. Morgan, stocky contender from Seattle, set the pace in the eighteen holes qualifying round of the Seniors' Northwest Golf Association yesterday afternoon at the Oak Bay links, by winning the medal honors with a 78. The Sound City expert handled his clubs well over the distance, and won the qualifying round by a lone stroke from J. J. "Jack" Dempsey, Tacoma, and Captain W. Langley, Seattle veteran. Dempsey and Langley were tied for the laurels until late in the afternoon, when Morgan came strolling in with his 78.

Right on the heels of the three leaders came Colonel J. P. Fell, Vancouver, defending titleholder, who served notice that he would be a strong contender for his second straight crown by shooting a steady 80. The champion was tied with C. H. McCoy, Spokane, while A. T. Goward led the locals with a fine 81. He was decked with W. H. Abbott, Bellingham; Paul C. Murphy, Portland, and E. I. Garret, Seattle. The Sound City veteran, and three others were bracketed in next position with scores of 82.

SOME DROP OUT
Several of those who gained places in the grand championship dropped out, preferring their classes, thus making room for other contenders. L. D. Rines and J. H. "Mickey" Richardson, two graduates to the seniors' ranks this year, both worked their way to places in the main flight. The failure of Curtis Harold, of Seattle, last year's medalist, to gain a place in the championship flight, was a feature that could not be overlooked. Harold was entirely off his game, and could not do anything right.

Although he finished in a tie for second place with a great 79, Captain Langley will not play any more golf this week. It is not because he does not want to, but it is doctor's orders, and the veteran says he must obey them. The Sound City veteran is playing good golf, and it is too bad that he is unable to continue in the tournament, as his golf yesterday made him one of the favorites to lift the crown. Jack Dempsey is another graduate to the ranks this year, and his score in the medal scramble made him feel much younger than he really is.

HEAT AFFECTS FIELD
A sweltering heat greeted the competitors and, as a result, the scores were much higher than expected. Not the slightest sign of a breeze swept over the course, and many of the veterans were visibly affected by the hard grind under such conditions. Outside of Colonel J. J. Goward, ex-champion, there was a place in the grand championship, and that was J. A. Byerley, Portland, winner in 1930 at the Royal Inwood Golf Club.

Three Victorians, L. D. Rines, J. H. Richardson and A. T. Goward, will carry the Capital City's colors into the titular flight. Today in the first round, Colwood Fell, in one of the feature matches, while the medalist tackles C. F. G. Pattullo, Spokane.

Next game tomorrow: Sons of Canada vs. Tillicums, Royal Athletic Park, at 6:15 o'clock.

ABLE to shake the jinx which has dogged their playing for the last few games, Tillicums bowed to the Sons of Canada, 3 to 1, last night at Royal Athletic Park, and definitely wrote themselves off the play-off list. The win for the Sons, which is the second straight, places them second in the league standing and assures them of a berth in the play-offs. Their improved hitting makes them a serious threat for championship honors, despite the fact that they have coasted along in the cellar position during a major part of the schedule.

Although the sun beat down on the players at the opening of the game, play was called at the end of the fifth inning owing to darkness.

Both pitchers worked hard, but Proudlove, for the Tillicums, was unable to control his throws, allowing scores to be run in.

SONS FIELD WELL

Sons were strong on their fielding and found the offerings of Proudlove to their liking, while Tillicums seemed helpless to stop them. Although Tillicums were able to hit Musgrave occasionally, their runners were, time and again, left on the base.

In the third inning Hill hurt his hand and was replaced behind the plate in the fourth inning by Manager Down.

First inning opened and closed with light ball playing on the part of both teams. First score of the night went to Tillicums when Gibbons, in the second inning, crossed the plate when Chapman displayed one of his favorite two-base hits. Musgrave then tightened up and retired the side with Chapman on third base.

With two men out for the Sons in the third inning, Kim Campbell reached first base when Moore dropped the ball on the bag. He went to second on a wild pitch of Proudlove. Haines came through with a hit which Gibbons fielded only to throw wild to first, and Campbell scored to even the tally. Haines reached second base. Bacon crashed a ball beyond first, and Haines raced over the plate to chalk up the second run and lead the Tillicums. Two runs were scored on one hit.

GET TWO MEN ON

In the second half of the third inning, Tillicums tried hard to score. Fleming singled over, while Phipps bunted safely, advancing Fleming. Musgrave was credited with an error on the play when he picked up the ball and threw it high to Webster at first, making him jump off the bag. The two runners advanced when Taylor failed to connect. Gibbons, big threat man for Tillicums, grounded out to leave his teammates on bases.

Sons looked for a score in the fourth inning when Barnes and Tilton stood on the bases and Webster stood at the bat, with Proudlove throwing wild. Webster, however, filed out to retire the side.

Musgrave allowed only four Tillicums to face him in the fourth. He struck out Moore and Chapman in succession, while Lynn Patrick hit a single. As Dowd came out to bat for Hill, Patrick left first base and played the lead in a "hot-box" scene. Patrick, however, was able to safely return to first when Musgrave attempted to outrun him. The inning ended with Patrick standing on third base.

Sons again scored in the fifth inning. Musgrave opened with a fine hit to left field, on which he ran his way to third. He scored when Proudlove delivered a wild ball. Campbell was allowed to walk.

Unknown Beats Pearson

ONE of the greatest upsets in the Canadian track and field world of recent date was the defeat in the track and field championships at Fort William of Bert Pearson, generally considered Canada's outstanding sprinter. A hitherto comparatively unknown sprinter, Harry Coleman, of Winnipeg, did the trick in 9.4.5 seconds. Above shows the finish of the 100-yard dash, with Pearson just a step behind Coleman.

Two Marksmen Tied In Important Shoot

Sergeant-Major Kiddie and Trooper Probyn Register Possible in MacDougall Cup Match—British Columbia Shots Figure in Prize Money

By HARRY ECKLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CONNAUGHT RANGES, OTTAWA, Aug. 14 (CP).—Sergeant-Major R. Kiddie, of Toronto, and Trooper H. W. Probyn, of Wayne, Alta., split honors in the first big individual shoot of the Canadian "Bible," today. Each posted a perfect score of 70 points to tie for the MacDougall Challenge Cup and split first and second money awards, each getting $19. They will shoot off for the trophy.

What promises to be one of the finest meetings of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association ever held—and it has been going since 1888—got under way on the far-spreading Connaught Ranges, with more than 500 marksmen competing.

In addition to completing the MacDougall, the marksmen got a start in the Bankers' match, firing the first of two rounds.

The two matches were fired at 500 yards and fifteen tied with perfect scores.

Mrs. J. Neal Dow, of Saint John, one of the four women at the ranges, got off to a fine start in the trophy match when she scored 34 out of a possible 35, getting 34. The other women shooting along with the Dominion's best military shots are blonde Gwen Spencer, of Victoria, who also competed in the Ontario meeting at Long Branch, last week; Mrs. E. W. Bonnell, of Saint John; and Mrs. M. C. Millard, of Sherbrooke, Que.

MANY PERFECT SCORES

The trophy match at the 500-yard range was fired in the morning, and in addition to fifteen perfect scores, a large number of 34's were posted. Among those who divided the front-ranking money awards were young Cadet D. R. Luff, of Hamilton, and Lieut.-Col. R. L. Simmonds, of Halifax, who was commandant of the Canadian team at Biele, last month. The fifteen will shoot off for the D.R.A.'s bronze medal.

The "B" team of the Essex Scottish Regiment, of Windsor, walked away with the Lewis gun match, adding this trophy to the Ontario Lewis Gun Trophy the regiment won last week. They finished with 122 points, thirteen ahead of the 109 points of the Ontario Highlanders winding up third with 107 points.

Mat Card Will Be Staged at Duncan Saturday Night

The best wrestling card in many months has been arranged for Duncan at the Agricultural Hall, Saturday, at 8.30 p.m.

In the feature bout of the card, George Farmer, 175 lbs., British Columbia champion, will meet Harold Luney, of Victoria. Plenty of action should be witnessed by the fans before the decision is rendered.

The second bout of the evening will bring Jim Yates, of Duncan, against Pete Tyson, popular Victoria wrestler. This pair will meet at 145 pounds. Frank Waring, crack local grappler, will meet Pat Walker, of Vancouver. Walker's temporary residence is Cowichan, and he has been appearing before the Island fans quite a lot recently. Two weeks ago, Walker met Pete Tyson and held him to a draw after a rough and fast fight.

Farmer will also give an exhibition of strong man feats. Two novelty events will conclude the programme.

Spying on Sports

By WILLIAM RITT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Just when Mr. Carl Hubbell, of the New York Giants, is receiving all the plaudits, which is his due, at the pitcher of the 1933 season, along comes a gaudy youth in a baseball monkey suit decorated with two little birds playing teeter-totter with a ball and shows himself right into the limelight.

Close inspection quickly identifies him as well as eye-thing youth as Jerry Herman Dean, nationally famed as Dizzy. Just as Hubbell was setting a new National League record for consecutive scoreless innings, Dizzy comes along and fans seven members of the Chicago Cubs. The Cubs, mind you, who are current National League champions because of their prowess at bat last year.

Dizzy's remarkable efforts tied a record set as far back as 1887. In other words, he was the best strike-out performer the senior circuit has seen in forty-six years.

Move over, Mr. Hubbell.

Already the boys are hailing Dizzy as another Christy Mathewson and a second Walter Johnson. No matter how great a pitcher can be, that cannot be 100 per cent true. Mathewson and Johnson were quiet, unobtrusive chaps whose light gleamed brightly, but gleamed nevertheless under a proverbial bushel. They were that type.

But not Dizzy. He became a St. Louis Cardinal regular on April 12, last year, and since that date Dean has been telling everyone just how good he is. Few believed him. But who looks foolish now? Not Mr. Dean, at any rate.

Dean laughed with scorn when he first beheld the bustling efforts of such National League heroes as Chuck Klein, Bill Terry, Lefty O'Doul, Babe Herman, et al.

It would be interesting—in light of recent events—to learn what is his opinion of National League heroes now.

EDNA CURRY HERE FOR BRIEF VISIT

Edna Curry, one of Victoria's premier swimmers a year ago and now a resident of San Francisco, was a visitor to Victoria yesterday. Miss Curry is still a powerful swimmer and is a member of one of San Francisco's leading clubs. A few weeks ago she rescued a boy from drowning after some heroic work. Miss Curry will leave for home today.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 14 (AP).—Stanislawa Wasiewicz (Stella Walsh, Poland's Olympic champion, bowed yesterday in both the 100 and 200-metre dashes of Belgium's national track and field meet to Tullius Schuurman, of Holland, but failed to win either.

My Theories on Golf

Average Golfers Should Make Self Swing Freely and Discard Fear of Full Backswing—Jones Emphasizes Value of Proper Swing

By BOBBY JONES

Here is an incorrect series of movements which the average golfer often tries to connect into an effective swing. Examine it and see if it is not something like the swing which you find does not work so well.

Begin from a stance and posture which are good enough except for the rigidity set up by anxiety and too great care in making the arrangements, start with the backswing by picking the club head up with the hands, particularly the right, and continue it mainly with the arms. The upper part of the body is permitted to twist somewhat, but there is an entire absence of footwork. The left heel remains planted in the ground and the left knee bends straight forward, toward the toe of the foot without moving the left bit toward the rear. At the top of the swing most of the weight is on the left foot and as the hitting effort begins, everything goes back onto the right leg.

I have seen this swing so many times that I have come to regard what I have described as a characteristic method of the average golfer. It embodies most of the common and more destructive faults, and it furnishes a broad pattern into which an astonishing number of swings can be fitted with only very slight differences to be noted. I am confident of finding a great many players who will recognize it, if not in its entirety, at least in substance, as their own.

Now, let us see what can be done about it. The most noticeable defects are in the absence of footwork and the incorrect handling of the body weight. There is no earthly reason why anyone should think that security on balance is aided by keeping the left heel planted in the ground. In hitting a golf ball adequately use of every member of the body must be made. The expert player gets a surprising amount of power from his legs, a thing he

AVOID UPRIGHT SWING

Almost every swing, save those of the first-class players, comes up too nearly in a vertical plane from the ball—in other words, in a too upright arc. And this is so because almost every swing, except of the experts, is defective to some degree in body turn and footwork. The average golfer answers that he is afraid to trust himself so far. He feels that he cannot risk the complicated movement. But he must force himself to do so. His salvation lies in swinging freely, not in trying himself up beyond all hope.

Sons of Canada And Taiyos Will Battle Tonight

Sons of Canada and Taiyos will tangle this evening at 6:15 o'clock, at Royal Athletic Park, in the second game of the Twilight Baseball League play-off. Taiyos went down to defeat at the hands of the Sons of Canada, Saturday afternoon, and in order to stay in the play-offs, they must win tonight's game.

Security Prices Little Changed At Wall Street

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Despite a long week-end, the stock market emerged today sleepy-eyed and fatigued, barely able to drag itself along in another dull and listless session.

Interest in acquiring stocks seemed to be negligible, and the list, as a whole, dropped fractions to around a point. The so-called "wet" shares, as well as the gold issues, were more alert than the rest, closing steady. Bonds were irregular in a narrow and sluggish market and the dollar showed a firm tone in foreign exchange dealings. Most commodities were fairly steady.

Transfers totaled only 1,222,280 shares. In the share market some gold stocks were in moderate demand as a result of the Government's ruling that gold concentrates might be exported. This means American companies, heretofore limited to the domestic market with its fixed legal price of $20.67 per ounce, can tap the world market at London, where refined gold is quoted around $30 an ounce.

Just what price the unrefined metal will bring after allowing for all charges, has not been authoritatively estimated.

Indifferent trading marked today's proceedings in the bond market and prices generally displayed a sagging tendency. Sales totaled only $8,645,000, par value, slightly less than last Friday's aggregate.

Secondary rail issues probably were the heaviest of the various groups, although some utility and industrial specialties were under pressure at one time or another.

United States Government securities were fairly steady and quiet. Foreign obligations moved irregularly.

"SIGNING" AND A "STIPULATION"

We have an inquiry on the origin of the expression "to sign your name" and also the word "stipulation," meaning an agreement or something understood and agreed upon.

"Signing" our names comes down to us from the days when education was so limited that the only signature known to most people was their "sign," commonly a cross.

"Stipulation" is derived from the Latin "stipula," which goes back to "stipula," meaning a stalk or stick. And we are supposed to have this word from the circumstance that the Romans broke a thin stick between them to make an agreement mutually binding.

ANSWER TO SUNDAY'S PUZZLE

COMMISSIONER IS DISMISSED

Allegedly Swore to Presence of Would-Be Voters in Their Absence

For allegedly swearing that applicants for admission on the Provincial Voters' List had appeared in person before him when they had not, Charles W. Lamb, a provincial voting commissioner in the Burnaby area, is to be relieved of his duties, it was announced yesterday by Attorney-General Pooley.

IT'S LIVER THAT MAKES YOU FEEL SO WRETCHED

Wake Up Your Liver Bile and Get A New Lease of Life. No Calomel Is Necessary.

For you to feel healthy and happy, your liver must pour two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels every day of your life. Without that bile, trouble starts promptly. Your food just won't digest the way it should and your bowels are sluggish. Food decays inside you and your entire system is undermined by this poisonous waste matter. You have indigestion—the discomfort of gas, bloating, heartburn and sourness. You are prey to headaches. Have a tongue like cotton-wool, a nasty taste in your mouth, bad breath and ugly skin. You haven't anything like the pep a healthy person should have. In fact you are generally wretched.

How can you expect to clear up a condition like this completely by taking mere bowel-movers like calomel, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum, or roughage? They can't wake up your liver bile!

Avoid calomel (mercury). Buy yourself a box of old reliable Carter's Little Liver Pills. All vegetable, sure, gentle, safe. They'll wake up your liver without upsetting you. Bring back the glad-to-be-well feeling, once more.

Don't waste your money on substitutes. Be definite. Ask for Carter's by name and get them. Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label side at all drug stores.

same ban, it was intimated, due to the fact that a personal appearance is necessary on the part of the would-be voter, and this course is not being followed in some instances.

NEGLECTED RULE
In the case of Mr. Lamb, officials of the Attorney-General's Department assert that he attested a number of applications for entry on the Provincial Voters' List in the absence of the applicants concerned. The form sets out that all such attestations are "sworn before me," meaning in the joint presence of the applicant and the commissioner.

For some time past the Government has been endeavoring to persuade voting commissioners to observe the rules to avoid confusion later.

Several other commissioners are under scrutiny in respect to similar facts, it is stated, and action to debar them from taking part in the enrollment of the electorate will be forthcoming unless the requirements of the electoral law are fully met.

Oxford Group Entertained By Team Here

The eleven members of the Vancouver Oxford Group team who visited the city over the week-end were entertained at tea at Spencer's dining-room yesterday afternoon by the Victoria Oxford Group team that recently visited Seneca.

The affair was thrown open to any others interested in the movement, and about ninety were present at the friendly gathering that arranged itself in informal groups about the numerous flower-decked tables. Exchange of greetings with the members of the visiting team was not according to any conventional plan, and there were no speeches. The affair broke up about 5:30 o'clock, after a pleasant two hours' fellowship.

The visitors, who were again in-

MERCURY RISES; PRESSURE FALLS

Maximum of 79 in the Shade Is Reached—Partly Cloudy Weather Possible

The mercury in the standard screen at Gonzales Observatory reached a high of 79 degrees yesterday, although in certain sections of town, particularly the business district, the heat was more intense. F. Napier Denison, director of the Dominion Meteorological Observatory, stated, however, that too much reliance should not be placed on domestic or advertisement thermometers in the downtown area, as these instruments often were subject to the sun's rays or the heat of a wall.

Actual temperature in the shade reached a maximum of 79 degrees, while on Sunday the maximum was 71 in the shade.

Victorians enjoyed 13 hours 42 minutes of sunshine, and during the past eight days have enjoyed an average of 13 hours 54 minutes of sunshine, or just six minutes short of an even fourteen hours, which is quite unusual.

OTHER TEMPERATURES
Weather all along the Coast was hot yesterday. Vancouver reported 80 degrees; Nanaimo, 86; Kamloops, 92; Prince George, 84; Grand Forks, 88; Nelson, 92; Seattle, 86; Portland, 92 and Red Bluff, in the Sacramento Valley, 114. Average temperatures on the Prairies were around 80. Mr. Denison reported that with the prolonged hot weather, fire hazards are increasing. Humidity is low, and the public are warned to take precautions against starting bush fires.

Mr. Denison reported that the barometer was falling in the South, and this might possibly bring partly cloudy weather.

Mrs. M. MacLachlan and her daughter have left for Palo Alto after spending a two months holiday in their summer cottage.

Mrs. R. A. Barr was a recent visitor at the home of Mrs. J. P. Noury.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Scott have been spending a fortnight in their cottage at "Sunnyside."

A garden party in aid of Holy Trinity Church, Sooke, will be held in the beautiful grounds of "Shrawardine" in Saanich, on Wednesday. Bathing, boating and pony rides will be outdoor features. Shrawardine is the home of Mrs. M. Robertson.

They were saying goodnight on the doorstep when a window above them was suddenly thrown open and a weary voice said:

"My dear sir, I have no objection to your coming here and sitting up with me, but my daughter, nor even to your standing on the doorstep for two hours saying goodnight; but out of consideration for the rest of the household, who wish to go to sleep, will you kindly take your elbow off the electric bell?"

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

VITAMINS

You are reading and hearing a great deal about vitamins these days. Food manufacturers, drug manufacturers, food experts, even restaurants are telling the world about the magic qualities of their products because these products contain vitamins.

Thus the first impression one might get is that a vitamin or vitamins are a new kind of food substance or that these manufacturers are putting this new food substance into their products.

As a matter of fact the various vitamins are not in any way alike; one vitamin being as different from another vitamin as meat is from bread.

Further, the average man, woman or child does not need to buy these products advertised to contain certain vitamins, in order to get enough vitamins. The daily diet of the average intelligent middle class individual contains all the necessary vitamins and in the amount necessary for the maintenance and workings of the body.

Take the average diet and it will be found that cereal, milk (perhaps some cream), toast, a little bacon and some tea or coffee with sugar and cream will make up the average breakfast.

Lunch will consist of bread and butter, milk, tea or coffee, some fruit or a salad.

Dinner will consist of soup, usually vegetable soup, meat, potatoes, one or two vegetables and some fruit or pastry for dessert.

An individual eating the above diet and getting out into real sunshine daily—not the sunshine of the dust and smoke-laden atmosphere of any city—need never think of vitamins. We do not get the full value of the ultra violet rays in cities.

However, most of us live indoors, get little sunlight, and not enough of one important vitamin—vitamin D which is needed to keep our bones, and principally our teeth in good condition; hence the decay of teeth in the majority of children and adults.

Vitamin D and ultra violet rays have the same effect upon the body. To get vitamin D, children are given more sunshine, are treated with ultra violet rays by special lamps, and also given cod liver oil. In other words if we lived outdoors our ordinary diet would be perfect. As we do not live outdoors, eggs and cod liver oil may be necessary to supply vitamin D.
